Call for alumni meet and paper presentations

Career development is everyone's concern. Teachers being entrusted with varied responsibilities in varied situations, need training and experience to cope with existing and emerging challenges in their institutional settings. This impels for professional development opportunities that span beyond simple in-service workshops or training programmes, and expand into a more robust system of continuing education. This year's alumni meet includes a seminar, which will highlight (but is not limited to) deliberations on professional development of teachers across three themes:

Potentials: engaging, inspiring and supporting teachers to realize their potential.

Pathways: transitioning through education and training into efficient & effective workforce.

Skills: working with peers, employers, and experts to improve education and training.

We invite all the alumni to share their research and experiences at the 11th Alumni Meet and Seminar on Professional Development of Teachers: Potentials, Pathways & Skills.

Papers and Presentations

We seek informative, relevant and thought-provoking research papers and presentations that showcase quality research with a sound evidence base; focus on findings and recommendations which can be applied to the professional development programmes for teachers; and which engage the audience. Paper presentations can highlight research which is either in progress or complete.
